

The Gregory Jackson Center

Brownsville, Brooklyn

Since its opening in the summer of 2015, the GJC has been the “one stop shop” assisting residents in eliminating barriers to opportunity, and in building the capability of Brownsville residents to increase their income and social mobility.

OVERVIEW

As a response to the urgent need for a Brownsville Community Hub, to support a growing peer-to-peer problem solving network and a number of other mutual aid activities driven by and for Brownsville residents in attractive community meeting spaces, the Greg Jackson Center for Brownsville-named after former NY Knick and the BP’s first Executive director, was created to bring together in one place, high quality small business, employment and social welfare supports.
